BABY IS KILLED BY THE CARS

Two and a Half Year Child of Frank Merumenian
Dies From Accident

DIES ENROUTE TO HOSPITAL

Child was Playing on Street at Waukegan When Accident Happens which Kills Little Girl

Florence, the 2 1/2 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Merumenian, who live just east of the electric road on Belvidere street, was run over by the 4 o'clock limited train Wednesday, and while it was rushed to the hospital, she died enroute. It was at first thought that she was killed instantly, but later it was believed there was a life spark left and she was hastened to where attendance could be given her.

The child had been playing on the tracks when the fast train hit her. The little brother Frank, rushed to his home and told his mother that his sister had been killed. The mother rushed to the crossing and reached the car just as the motorman started to move on. She seized the handle and according to two women the conductor shoved her off so she fell, she desired to get aboard where her injured child was. The car passed on, the crew taking it to Edison court where Conrad & Hart's ambulance received it and made the trip to the hospital.

Eric Johnson, twelve years of age said that he had saved the child from being run down a few days ago and that afterwards he went to her mother and told her she had better keep the babe from the tracks or she would get run down.

The child's mother was prostrated when word reached her that her babe had been killed. Her condition became so bad that Dr. Waterson was called. The fatality threw the neighborhood into a state of great excitement.

WISCONSIN COUPLE MARRIED AT BRISTOL WEDNESDAY

At the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Wienke at Bristol on Wednesday occurred the marriage of their daughter Tillie to Robert Moldenhauer of LaCrosse, Wis.

The house was beautifully decorated with roses. The groom wore the conventional black and the bride was dressed in white silk, with white roses for the wedding flower. The bridesmaid was Miss Tillie Weinholz of Bristol and best man was Mr. Moldenhauer of LaCrosse.

The bride and groom will make their home at Port Edwards, Wis., where he is depot agent.

SPARE THE TIME TO LAUGH

Even In Depressing Circumstances It Is Man's Duty to Strive to Be Cheerful.

It is the duty of mankind, even in depressing circumstances, to strive to be cheerful. It is the general belief that if a man is not naturally light-hearted, he cannot make himself so.

Yet this is far from being the case, and there is many a man who is at present a weary burden to his relatives, miserable through the carking care of some bodily ailment perhaps, or some worldly misfortune, who, if he had grown up with the idea that to be cheerful in all circumstances was one of the first duties of life, might still see a pleasant enough world round him.

The worries of a morose person will shorten his days, and the general justice of nature's arrangements provides that his early departure should entail no long regrets.

On the other hand, the man who can laugh keeps his health. To the perfectly healthy laughter comes often. Too commonly, though, as childhood is left behind, the habit falls, and a half smile is the most that visits the thought-lined mouth of a modern man or woman. People become more and more burdened with the accumulation of knowledge and with the weighty responsibilities of life, but they should still spare time to laugh.

GAMBLING WAS STOPPED

Large Number of Sheriffs and Detectives Watch For Gamblers

Emil Joans of Wauconda was fleeced of $40 of hard earned cash at the fair last Friday on a gambling game run with a spindle wheel but recovered it through the timely intercession of Deputy Sheriff Dennis Limberry of Libertyville and Detective Gibbons of Chicago. The party of men consisting of ten members, who were running the concession, were driven off the grounds, but the particular man who cheated the boy, for Emil Joan is a minor, could not be found. Deputy Limberry was all in the air over the affair and made the men make double quick time off the grounds and threatened to arrest them if they tried the trick any more. He made them give the money back to the boy. The deputy is inclined to believe that many other boys were fleeced in the same way, but have not reported it because they do not think anything could be done for them. One pick-pocket was reported to have taken a purse containing $12 from a man living at Grayslake in the Amphitheatre while he was watching the races. The man pointed out whom he suspected of the alleged theft and a detective was detailed to watch him closely, but the man did not pickpocketing after that and so was not arrested.

"I'm going to keep the 'fairs clean,'" said Deputy Limberry, "if it depends on my life to do so. I'm not going to stand for the skin games and especially this cheating of young boys who know no better than to take chances on such devices. I have this year driven out six concessionists who tried to introduce gambling and I will put out every one else that tries it."

A large number of fly-cops were engaged from the Chicago detectives bureau besides hundreds of deputies. The railroad companies furnished a large number of detectives to help detect pickpockets at the stations and on the trains.

MRS. STEEL LEFT NO WILL

Son of Mrs. Steel Gets the Large Fortune of $450,000 Left by Her

Despite the fact that she left an estate of half a million dollars, it developed that the late Mrs. Margaret Steele did not have a will, so therefore her only child Nelson, will come into heirship of the entire estate. The personal property of which according to the papers filed in the County court, is $450,000 in value.

The fact that no will was left by the rich widow removes the generally believed theory that Mrs. Steele had planned to give a new rectory to Christ church.

Mr. Steele through Attorney Elam Clarke filed a petition asking that letters of administration be issued to him as the son of the widow and Judge Persons named him executor of the estate.

The paper show the property to be worth $450,000 and that it consists of real estate, horses, store buildings, lots, stocks, bonds, etc., as well as cash in the banks, together with the residence and contents.

The bond was fixed at $950,000 and was signed by Messrs. Steele, C. J. Jones, O. H. Burnette and Elam Clarke.

This is perhaps the first time in the history of the county that a woman of her wealth has died without leaving a will. Because he is her only son and only real heir, her son, Nelson A. Steele, president of the First National bank, himself a rich man, thus becomes at once the richest man by far in Waukegan.

YOUNG COUPLE MARRIED WEDNESDAY

With Rev. Father Lynch officiating, the marriage of Miss Julia Vidvard and W. Lester Lomax was solemnized in this village at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning.

The bride is the youngest daughter of Col. Vidvard of Grass Lake and is well known in that section. The groom, a resident of Chicago, while a stranger in this locality is a young man of exemplary habits and traits of character. The happy couple will make their future home in Chicago. The News joins with their many friends in extending congratulations.

Make Bathing Form of Worship.
Our American bathing resorts pale into insignificance beside those of India—though to the Hindoo bathing is a religious duty as well as a personal luxury. East India papers report that during one week recently at the holy city of Allahabad nearly 3,000,000 people bathed in the rivers Jumna and Ganges, which meet at that place.

WOODMAN RATES ARE IN COURT

Suit to Stop the Advance of the Woodmen Rates is Before Circuit Court

SIMILAR CASES ELSEWHERE

Vote For Rates Will be Taken After the Presidential Election in November
Undoubtedly

The application of the insurgent members of the Modern Woodman for an injunction to restrain the head officers from putting into effect the rate increase voted by the head camp in January is pending before circuit court at Springfield. The insurgents deny the necessity of the increase in rates and attack the legality of the head camp, which ordered it, while the attorneys for the order insist that the action was a legal one and taken only after a long discussion and that the new rates are already in effect. A similar injunction suit has been begun in Iowa and will be argued at Des Moines Sept. 17.

In the meantime a law passed by the special session of the Illinois legislature provides for a referendum vote of all Woodmen members on the increase in rates. The referendum board is made up of the insurance superintendent, the state treasurer and the state superintendent of public instruction and they are now endeavoring to agree on a time and plans for taking the vote. The board desires to postpone the taking of the referendum until after Presidential election in November. A date early in December is suggested, but as the canvass of the vote would undoubtedly require at least a month, this would delay official action until after the first of the year.

The increase in rates provided for by the head camp goes into effect automatically Jan. 1, on all members who have not previously selected one of the various forms offered and has been in effect for some time for all new members. There is considerable opposition to the delay in taking the referendum on the part of both insurgents and those favoring the increase.

ODD FELLOWS HOLD UNION MEETING AT WAUKEGAN

An important union meeting of Odd Fellows of Lake County was held in the Waukegan hall Tuesday, evening the outcome of the meeting being the Odd Fellows organization which is to include all of the six lodges of the county. A permanent organization will be perfected a little later.

The object of the order within the order is to cement the Odd Fellows of the county and enable them to accomplish better and greater things. While the members will not admit it, it is felt that ultimately this county organization may launch a movement to erect an Odd Fellows temple in the county, probably at Waukegan. There has been much talk of taking a step of this kind during the past few years hence it is felt by those on the outside that this may be one of the chief reasons of forming the county organization.

Might Be the Fact.
Burglars who broke into a Paris flat recently removed all the fashionable pinnies dresses belonging to the mistress of the house and left a number of old skirts. "The police," says a Paris correspondent, "suspect a fashion expert." We, on the other hand, are inclined to wonder if the burglary was not committed by the lady's husband, who may easily have been a simple-hearted fellow who wished to see his wife becomingly dressed for a week or two.—By-stander.

TWO WOMEN DROWNED

Heat May Have Caused One Woman to End Life While

ROAT CAUSES ONE ACCIDENT

Geo. Renahan Rescues Husband But His Wife Drowns, Lake Michigan Claims
Body of Other Woman

In the absence of Coroner Taylor Deputy Coroner Conrad held both the inquests Monday. At the Highland Park inquest he learned it was Charles Don who had dived and located the body after the stranger had seen the woman walk calmly into the lake, had informed him of the occurrence Thomas Christianson assisted Don. In the woman's pocket was found $1.19 and a return ticket on the electric from Highland Park to Evanston. She evidently had purchased the ticket intending to return home, but changed her mind after reaching the park. She wore a fine silken dress and appeared to be refined.

Because there was no apparent reason for her death, the belief is that the heat of Sunday affected her mind, for the jury held that she committed suicide while temporarily insane.

Mrs. H. R. Risinger of Chicago aged 28 was drowned in Round Lake at eight o'clock Sunday evening while her husband struggled in six feet of water not only unable to save her as he cried for help, but barely able to keep himself afloat until help arrived.

The wife sank before her husband's eyes, both calling for help following the upsetting of their boat. Mrs. Risinger according to the husband, had stood up in the boat when it upset, throwing them into six feet of water, about 200 yards from shore.

George Renahan heard Risinger's cry for help and jumping into a boat rushed to the scene, saving him just as he was going down for the third time and bringing him safely to the shore.

The woman had disappeared and while a search was kept up all Sunday night, her body not being found until about 10 o'clock Monday morning.

Mr. Risinger, according to the report from Round Lake, had stood up in the boat, planning to shift seat when the weight on one side caused the boat to sink. Screams for aid did not bring it in time to save the women whose clothes drew her down, but Mr. Renahan's prompt work resulted in Risinger being rescued.

MOTHER OF FOUR SMALL CHILDREN SENT TO ASYLUM

Mrs. Anna Marie Lill Groner a resident of Diamond Lake, Ill., was adjudged insane by a jury in the county Wednesday morning and was committed to the state hospital for the insane at Elgin.

The insane woman is the mother of four children. Since the birth of her last child she has been feeble minded. Her relatives placed her in a sanitarium at Kenilworth but her condition did not improve.

Recently she was removed from the sanitarium to her home near Diamond Lake. It was during her last stay at her home that she is alleged to have threatened to murder her babies.

During her stay in the court room, at frequent intervals, Mrs. Groner entertained the court attaches by singing verses of hymns and some of the latest songs.

She possesses a beautiful voice. Her case is one of the most pitiful on record. Sheriff Green accompanied the young mother to the insane asylum.

She is one of the best known and most beloved resident in our community, said an old settler from Diamond Lake.

A Good Salesman.
"Well, Jingle," said the manager, "did you make the sale?" "Yes," said the salesman. "I couldn't get the darned old machine to run over half speed, but I arranged with one of the town constables to arrest us for exceeding the speed limit, and old Skeels fell for it right away."

B-MOOSE PARTY IS SPLIT

F. S. Monroe Nominated Candidate Against
Edward Shurtleff

The split has come in the Lake County Bull Moose party.

At least in the senatorial fight as the result of a meeting or convention that was held Friday, in Hamilton hall, the twenty-fourth ward in Chicago. F. S. Monroe of Highland Park was nominated as the candidate to oppose Edward Shurtleff for the state legislature and resolutions were adopted endorsing Senator Albert J. Olson.

Mr. Olson was at the convention himself had made several talks, securing his own endorsement, and also the passage of a resolution condemning Shurtleff.

The Lake County men went to the convention with the firm conviction that Henry Edwards, a widely known Lake County man was to be nominated. But when they arrived they discovered that everything had been framed up for Monroe as had been announced some time ago and the convention nominated him.

The Bull Moosers of this county many of them believe that Monroe, a Chicago lawyer residing at Lake Forest, "stole" their convention. He was elected as the chairman, and later as the delegate to the National Progressive convention.

There is wide comment about the county, among the Bull Moosers regarding this situation.—Waukegan Gazette.

Gift That Blaine Had.

James G. Blaine had the rare gift of dismissing from his presence any one who had come to him for a favor which he could not grant, with a feeling that he was his big brother, and grieved to death at the compulsion of refusal. Although Blaine was universally beloved, yet he was defeated for the highest office in the gift of the people.—From the Magazine of American History.

MILK AND ICE CREAM FAMINE

The Milk Supply of Waukegan is Threatened—Fear it May be Cut off Soon

WEATHER PROVES SERIOUS

Ice Cream Manufacturers Dealers if the Heat Keeps up They Will be Unable to Make the Cream

Waukegan is facing an acute shortage in the milk supply due, dealers say to the continued warm spell.

There is an ice cream famine and although it is not as bad as during Saturday and Sunday, there are one or two dealers who are running short each day.

William Dolen, of the firm of Dolen & Broecker, said there has been a shortage of milk for the past two weeks. "Two weeks ago," he said, we were receiving twenty more cans of milk each day than we are receiving at present."

Many ice cream parlors were without cream during a good part of the past three days. No evaporated cream has been used in Waukegan by the manufacturers of ice cream, as yet.

Mr. Dolen said he could use just twice the quantity of milk he is now receiving. The milk depot owners have not been compelled to turn down orders, but many were compelled to send pint bottles, where a quart had been ordered. He was inclined to be optimistic concerning the matter, one well known dealer did deny that there is a shortage in the milk supply.

"Cows are drying up," said one farmer. "Of course, right at this time of the year that is a natural condition, but the situation is made worse by the continued warm weather. A few cool days will have a tendency to decrease the tenseness of the situation."

One dealer further reported that if the hot weather kept on a few days longer there might be signs up at most soda fountains reading: "No Ice Cream Obtainable!"

The North Shore Dairy company is naturally encountering the same trouble as Dolen & Broecker in getting milk. The shortage is not confined to any single place—it is general.

The Waukegan Ice company, which secures its supply from Paddock Lake, uses a couple of cars of ice per day. As yet they have not failed to fill the orders but when it is known that they ship ordinarily from 17 to 22 cars a day from the lake and now they are unable to ship more than a dozen because of the shortage of cars, it is seen that the ice situation also is none too encouraging.

COMMITTEE APPOINTED ON NEW TOWNSHIP DIVISION MATTER

The board of supervisors have appointed a committee consisting of Supervisors Brooks, of Wauconda, Meyer of Fremont and King of Shields, to investigate the claims for a new Lake Villa Township, and to report to the board, their findings on Friday.

At present there are two hundred and thirty-six names on the petition, and only to hundred and six are necessary. Two hundred must live in the proposed township.

This matter, which has aroused some little interest throughout the county will be decided definitely on Friday, according to the present plans.

FRANCE WINS RACE

MULES VEDRINES BREAKS ALL RECORDS IN FLIGHT FOR GORDON-BENNETT CUP.

124.8 MILES IN 70:56.85

French Speed King Covers Course at Average of 105 1/2 Miles an Hour—Aviator Is Stone Deaf When He Finishes Flight.

Chicago, Sept. 11.—The hard-driving Frenchman, Jules Vedrines, with the big Deperdussin monoplane, broke all American records when he won the Gordon-Bennett cup here Monday after a sensational flight in 70 minutes and 56.85 seconds. The distance was 124.8 miles, in 30 laps of 4.14 miles each.

Vedrines covered the course without a hitch. A great crowd of people watched the race from the parking spaces, and many thousands viewed it from positions all around the course, having been prevented from entering the field by most officials. After he had completed his distance Vedrines flew an extra lap, finishing the total distance in 73 minutes and 17.37 seconds. It was a remarkable performance, chiefly because of its tremendous speed, the distance being covered at the rate of 104 miles an hour.

Vedrines was stone deaf when he completed his sensational dash. He recovered under medical treatment in twenty minutes.

Vedrines' average speed for the entire distance was officially recorded as 105 1/2 miles an hour. While some laps were made in poorer time than others, the daring flyer on certain of his laps around the 4.14 mile course exceeded his own world's record of 106 miles an hour. His best time was made in the eighteenth lap, which was done in 2:18, or at the rate of 108 1/2 miles an hour. Vedrines started at 9:30 a. m. and finished at 10:44.

Maurice Prevost, another member of the French team, completed the course in 1 hour 13 minutes 10.82 seconds.

No other contestants completed the course. Andre Frey, the third member of the French team, came to earth on his twenty-third lap, but he was already hopelessly beaten by Prevost.

REPUBLICANS WIN IN MAINE

William T. Haines Has Strong Lead Over Gov. Plasted in Race For Ticket's Head.

Portland, Me., Sept. 11.—A partial return, at least, to the normal Republican vote of Maine is shown by the returns Monday from the election, which show that Haines is giving William T. Haines, the Republican candidate for governor, approximately the same margin over Governor Plasted as the governor attained two years ago over Bert M. Fernald, his Republican opponent.

Returns from the four congressional districts also indicate the election of three Republican congressmen as against two at the last election. In the first district, Congressman Asher C. Hinds ran ahead of his ticket and gained on the margin attained two years ago, when he was the only Republican elected in the district, and is practically sure of reelection over Michael T. O'Brien.

Congressman McGillicuddy, Democrat, in the second district, is leading slightly over William B. Skelton, Republican.

In the third district, Forrest Goodwin, Republican, will capture Congressman Samuel W. Gould's seat.

In the fourth district, Republican Congressman Frank E. Guernsey is leading Charles Mullen and will be re-elected by a small plurality.

VETERANS OF CIVIL WAR MEET IN ANNUAL ENCAMPMENT.

Affiliated Bodies Also Gather in Conventions Which Will Last Almost Entire Week.

Los Angeles, Sept. 10.—A record crowd of sightseers and veterans marked the formal opening of the forty-sixth national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic here. Old soldiers, with their wives, children and grandchildren, thronged the streets, the veterans forming the center of interested groups of spectators and listeners.

The old soldiers were formally welcomed to Los Angeles at a mass meeting, where men of local eminence in the ranks of the Grand Army voiced the sentiment of the citizens in offering the hospitality of the city. Automobiles, private residences, amusement parks and transportation companies have been placed at the disposal of the visiting hosts, citizens and public officials contesting for the privilege of rendering the stay of the veterans and their relatives a pleasant one.

Every care has been taken to provide adequate means for guarding the health of the visiting soldiers, hospitals and physicians offering their assistance in establishing emergency dispensaries throughout the city. The encampment will be broken up on September 14, after an annual review and a long round of entertainments and excursions.

The affiliated bodies which also hold national conventions here this week are the Women's Relief Corps, Ladies of the G. A. R., Daughters of Veterans, National Association of Army Nurses of the Civil War and the National Association of Union Ex-Prisoners of War.

Columbus, O., Sept. 7.—Placing Arthur L. STRAUS HEADS TICKET

CANDIDATE OF NEW YORK PROGRESSIVES FOR GOVERNOR.

Most Remarkable Demonstration as Fight That Threatens to Split Party Is Settled.

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 9.—After one of the most remarkable demonstrations in the history of political conventions, Oscar S. Straus, former ambassador and cabinet officer, was Friday afternoon nominated by the New York state Progressives as their candidate for governor.

Just when it seemed that the bickering between the adherents of Comptroller Prendergast of New York and State Chairman Hotchkiss were certain to split the "Bull Moose" party wide open on the day of its birth, J. C. Magoo of the Fifteenth New York assembly district fought his way to the platform and, with a ringing speech, turned thunderous howls of derision aimed at the speaker into a wild outbreak of enthusiasm.

The cheering lasted 16 minutes. Hats, women's and men's, were trampled and torn and bandannas were whipped to shreds. The band played "Onward, Christian Soldier." Hotchkiss fought his way to the platform, where Straus was sitting as chairman, and began to plead with him to accept. A dozen other leaders followed. Tim Woodruff among them, and Straus inclined his head ever so slightly. J. J. Kingsbury moved that the nomination be made unanimous, and the motion was seconded by Rev. J. W. Karnshaw. The ticket follows:

For Governor, Oscar S. Straus of New York.

SIX KILLED, 22 ARE INJURED

"Eddie" Hasha, National Champion Motorcycleist, and Johnny Albright Crushed While Racing.

Nowark, N. J., Sept. 10.—While several thousand persons assembled at the Vailsburg motorrome here Sunday were wild cheering on Eddie Hasha, the champion motorcycle rider of the world, and Johnny Albright of Denver, who were competing in the principal event of the day, Hasha suddenly lost control of his machine and crashed over the top of the saucer track into the grand stand, followed closely by Albright. Both were killed, as were four spectators. Twenty-two of the onlookers were injured, six of whom are in a hospital in a critical condition.

Hasha met death instantly. Albright was crushed so badly that he never regained consciousness, and died in a hospital here shortly afterward.

Straus Is Congratulated. Yonkers, N. Y., Sept. 10.—Oscar Straus, the Progressive nominee for governor, was deluged Sunday with messages of congratulation at his home in Tarrytown, receiving fully 1,000 telegrams from over the country.

Minister Burned to Death. Fondra, N. Y., Sept. 10.—Rev. H. Grete, pastor of the Lutheran church in Germantown, Pa., was burned to death Sunday before his children and several other persons while pinned beneath a wrecked motor car.

Husband Killed; Wife Loses Foot. Fonda, N. Y., Sept. 10.—While rushing at a high rate of speed Sunday in their automobile from New Haven, Conn., to Syracuse, N. Y., W. W. Gale was killed and his wife lost her right foot in a smash-up.

U. S. READY TO ACT

AMBASSADOR CALERO CARRIED ULTIMATUM FROM PRESIDENT TAFT TO MADERO.

MUST PROTECT AMERICANS

More Troops Are Ordered South in Fear Rebels May Carry Out Threats to Attack Arizona City or Douglas.

Washington, Sept. 10.—So keen is the interest felt in every development there and so tense the situation on the Mexican border that officials of the war and state departments were held on duty Sunday to receive reports and to prepare for immediate action should such become necessary. Ambassador Calero as soon as he reaches Mexico City will present to his government the demand of the United States that effective action shall be taken by the Mexican government to safeguard the lives of Americans in northern Mexico and to prevent destruction of American property on both sides of the boundary. President Madero is expected by the state department to make a prompt reply to this demand.

General Steever, in command of the American forces along the border, made no report of additional disturbances by Mexican rebels. For this reason officials of the war department are inclined to consider as exaggerated dispatches stating that rebels have threatened to attack Arizona City and Douglas, and that women and children are being rushed to points of safety while the male citizens are arming themselves to repel invasion and to prevent a massacre.

It is stated at the war department that General Steever has a sufficient number of men at these places to drive back into Mexico any of the rebel bands now operating within striking distance of either Arizona City or Douglas and no information of the concentration of these bands has been received. Less concern as to the safety of Americans along the border will be felt by the war department, however, with the arrival of the two additional troops of cavalry ordered from Forts D. A. Russell and Riley to reinforce the border patrol.

Beverly, Mass., Sept. 10.—Although President Taft will not intervene in Mexico without the fullest deliberation upon a step that would mean war, his friends declared Sunday that intervention is nearer than it has been since the first American troops were rushed to the border 18 months ago.

It can be stated on the highest authority, however, that should the president decide that intervention is the only course open to him, he will call congress in special session and demand of it the authority to send the American army across the border.

Eagle Pass, Tex., Sept. 10.—The specter of intervention is causing another exodus of Americans from Mexico. All trains arriving at Texas border points Sunday were crowded with refugees, many of whom fled from small and unprotected towns where the situation is deemed critical. Advances from the larger cities of the interior are to the effect that many Americans are preparing to leave for the United States and that the safety of American women and children particularly is being looked after.

Saved in Fire by Police. New York, Sept. 9.—Sixty-two persons, 48 of them children, were saved Friday from death in a row of burning tenements in Degraw street, Brooklyn, by four policemen. All of the 62 had been overcome by smoke.

Mrs. MacArthur Stricken. Milwaukee, Sept. 9.—Mrs. MacArthur, widow of Lieutenant General MacArthur, who dropped dead while addressing his Civil war comrades, is in a serious condition at her home as a result of the shock.

"LET US HAVE A HEART TO HEART TALK."

Be you producer, consumer, dairyman, farmer or manufacturer; are you giving thought to economic conditions as they are today in America? If so, what are your views on the needs of importing $10,000,000 to $12,000,000 worth of dairy products the last fiscal year, and what do you think about our having to import $1,000,000 worth of meat animals during the same period?

What got us into such a shape? Let us talk it over. Was it cheap production on the low-priced lands of the west, or were we scared by the constant hammering that the politicians gave our industry, and which the city press has only too thoughtlessly been willing to publish as news, to the effect that we were being robbed by the trusts? Or was it mere indifference to some kind of live stock production on the farm because we were breeding scrub stock and it did not pay? No matter what it was that has put us where we are, we are losing ground. Profit, labor and all the bugaboos that enter into the subject have been cursed and discussed, but the serious problem is before us of overcoming the need of sending $125,000,000 to $150,000,000 of our good American gold to foreigners for our food supply. We are as intelligent as any nation on earth and as capable as the people of any country to solve the problem of economic production. It is one that must be seriously considered by all the people and each and every one must give of his talents and means to solve it.

The price of land in the middle west has been enhanced very considerably in the past ten years, and our state agricultural colleges have done splendid work in showing us what can be produced profitably on these high-valued lands, and dairy farming seems to be the answer, but this must be engaged in intelligently. You must first have profitable cows on your farms, then intelligent farming, so as to secure maximum of production at minimum of cost. As the merchant, manufacturer and railroad president must seek new and modern methods to attain the best results in his business, and is constantly expending large sums to equip himself for present day competition, why should not the farmer and dairyman seek the best obtainable information on subjects of interest to him?

Each year at Chicago, we have the National Dairy Show, which gives actual demonstrations in problems of breeding and feeding for greatest profit in all of the dairy breeds. These shows give you a practical demonstration in all that is modern in machinery, both for the dairy and for the farm. Experts who have solved the marketing of and caring for the dairy products for best results, here give you their findings. Why not take advantage of it? Do not get it into your head that you are too small in the business to get value out of this show; the small men and the beginners really are the chaps the show is for. The creamery man, the milk dealer, the butter maker, the ice cream man, all receive their benefit at this great show that is founded for no other purpose than to advance the interest of the dairy cow.

Think this over and come and see us October 24 to November 2 at the International amphitheater, Chicago, the only building, except state fair buildings, where the immensity of your industry can be fully displayed. Will you do your part to advance the cause? The problem is before the country. "Which shall it be, Beef or Dairy?"

Collective Housekeeping. An English paper tells of an experiment in collective housekeeping in what is known as Brent Garden village. The dwelling houses contain all improvements except a kitchen. Meals for everybody are cooked at a central hall, and may either be eaten there or sent home. A four-course dinner costs only 1 shilling and 6 pence. Servants are supplied, when needed, from the central hall at a cost of about ten cents an hour.

Subtle Admonition. "Why do you always ask that regular customer if the razor hurts him?" asked one barber. "Just as a gentle reminder," replied the other, "that if he forgot the tip it's liable to hurt him next time."

Uncle Sam and Goods Roads

More than 250,000,000 tons of freight are hauled over dirt roads by the farmers of this country in a year. The average cost is 23 cents per ton per mile and the average haul is nine miles making each ton that the farmer produces or purchases cost $2.07 for transportation on public high ways alone, as an average for the whole country.

If our public roads were as good as those of England, Germany and Switzerland the average haul of one ton would cost only 72 cents or 1.35 less than it now does and the saving to the farmers in one year would be over $337,000,000 according to the estimates made by the Department of Agriculture. Here, then, is a waste of $337,000,000 which must come out of somebody's pocket.

These facts show why every citizen of the United States is interested in the recent appropriation by Congress of $25,000 to enable a joint committee "to make inquiry into the subject of federal aid in the construction of post roads," and of a further appropriation of $500,000 for the improvement of roads over which rural mail delivery has been or may be established.

However, the $500,000 appropriated by the national government for road building will go three times as far, at least, as the sum indicates. Congress made the provision that each state in the Union should be allotted $8,000 to spend in improving selected roads, on condition that each state appropriate not less than $16,000 for the work. In other words the federal government will pay one-third and the state or county government two-thirds of the cost of improving the roads.

All this work is to be done under the plan and supervision of the office of good roads of which Logan W. Page is director. He expresses these views on the subject:

"It is much better I believe that the states should treat their road building as a local problem. The first consideration is the development of agriculture and commerce; the second, the carrying of mails, and the third, which need now hardly be considered, is national defense. If the states are encouraged to develop their roads according to their own needs an interstate system of highways will naturally develop and for the time being, the matter of trunk lines can be permitted to take care of itself. It is important of course to cater to the automobile, but that is not the item of first importance. We must show the farmer and the merchant that we can increase the value of his property and his business by means of good roads and this we must do where the farmer lives. Starting in this way, a general system will develop but it is important that we should begin at the right end. Quite a number of states, particularly in the East, have been improving their roads remarkably. The average cost of the improved state roads is about $13,000 a mile. Director Page believes the standard should be raised so that the average cost will be about $18,000 a mile. He thinks it can be demonstrated that it is real economy to do so, because the one costing $18,000 will last three times as long as one costing $13,000.

The Governor of each state will shortly receive a letter notifying him that as soon as the Legislature has made an appropriation of not less than $16,000 for the improvement of post roads selected by him, the federal government will make an allotment of $8,000 to help build the road and an expert to supervise the work will be detailed by the office of good roads. By this plan the national government escapes being involved in any political "wire pulling" over the selection of roads to be improved or being charged with any infringement of "state rights," so jealously regarded in certain sections.

Why We Are Right-Handed.
One of the professors at a well known agricultural college has figured it out that if you are left-handed it is a sign that your ancestors were not good fighters.
"Most persons are right-handed," says he. "Only one in every twenty is left-handed. Why are people right-handed? They may have been born that way, it is true; but why?"
"Away back in the beginning the chief occupation of man was fighting. In battle he carried a shield in one hand and a weapon in the other. It was not much work to carry the shield, but the quick action required by the hand and arm which did the fighting soon developed that arm. It also developed the nerves and the half of the brain that governed the right side of the body. Those who shielded their left side—thus protecting the heart—were the ones who usually came out victorious. Down through the ages this selection continued, the right hand gradually becoming more proficient."

Goose an Old Man's Guard.

When traveling along the road from Legars toward Kennelstonhead Cottage, St. Hill, Kelsa, I met an old gentleman walking with the assistance of crutches, and a goose following as closely as possible behind him, avers a writer in the Scotsman. I stopped and spoke to the old man and the goose at once took up its position between his leg and the crutch on the side nearest to me. It then proceeded to make as much noise as possible, and assumed all the defiant attitudes imaginable.

On my approaching within a few feet of the old man it at once flew at me, and pecked, or rather bit, violently at my legs. I tried to keep it at bay by pushing it away with my feet, but that was of no avail, and I had ultimately to strike it over the bill with my walking stick to make it release its hold on my trousers. I found out later that it had bitten a considerable piece of skin off my leg.

The old gentleman informed me that the goose follows him wherever he goes, and during stormy weather when he cannot venture outside it spends the day at the door of his cottage or else near by.

Devout Mecca Pilgrims.

We stopped our special train yesterday for an hour or two in the very middle of native Africa, and went for a morning walk. There were troops of natives on donkeys from the villages around coming for water to the wells, which they themselves dig, and we talked to some delightful native boys about their lives.

One boy standing by the well, to my surprise, was on his way to Mecca, having traveled already two or three thousand miles, which had taken two or three years. His father had died on the way, and when I asked him how he would manage he said quietly: "God will provide," and it never entered his mind to ask me for anything.

Five minutes afterward we came across three women—an old woman and two daughters. The oldest daughter was five and twenty. They were coming back from Mecca, but they had started off, she said, when she was a little girl about twelve—Bishop of London in the Treasury.

Equity.

Owing to the increased cost of everything, the doughnut had become too valuable to eat. Accordingly it was being financed.

Naturally an enterprise of such magnitude was fraught with more or less uncertainty. "How, for instance," the underwriters asked, "about the hole—is it to be financed, too?" So the courts were appealed to.

"The hole," these decided, after three or four years, "is the equity, and as such it may be financed."

U. S. Doughnut fell off a point or two, but speedily recovered, because something had to be the equity anyway.—Puck.

Same Girl.

"Dad, I want to marry Tottie Twinkletons. I hope you won't blame me for wanting to marry a chorus girl."

"Not at all, my boy. I wanted to marry her myself when I was about your age, and your grandfather was also engaged to her once."

In 1916.

"But you can't vote for that woman. Remember that you have been sent here with instructions to vote for Mrs. Pollington first, last and all the time. You are in honor bound to obey those instructions."

"File on your old instructions," replied the lady delegate. "I wouldn't vote for Mrs. Pollington even if there were no other woman in the world to vote for. She's gone and had her hat trimmed just like mine."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Nettles as Substitute for Cotton.

The search for a cotton substitute has been going on in Europe for a long time, and many experiments have been made with the common nettle, which has been a promising plant on account of the strength of its fiber and its ready growth wild under the most discouraging conditions, with a large yield per acre. The great difficulty has been in separating the fiber from the woody stem. In a method of treatment that has been worked out in the last two or three years, the dried nettle stems are boiled about half an hour in dilute soda lye, and the loosened fibers are then separated in a machine with revolving brushes. The material is then subjected to a number of alternate bollings in dilute lye and thorough washings, both under high pressure. The product is a mass of yellowish fibers, free from gum, that can be bleached, combed, and spun into lustrous white yarn. This is claimed to have the smoothness and softness of flax, with a strength even greater than that of hemp. The yarn has been made into brilliant damask, and can be used—alone or with other threads—for upholstery, ribbons, and a variety of fabrics.

Year's Sleep in Prison.

A remarkable case of lethargy is reported from one of the towns in South Russia. A certain Molosselyanko was put on his trial in March of last year on the charge of having committed an armed robbery, but in the midst of the proceedings he dropped to the floor in what was supposed at the time to be a fainting fit, but which afterward proved a lethargic sleep.

In this condition the prisoner has lain till March 8 of the present year. He has evidently been all the time in complete possession of his wits, but was unable to move a limb, open his eyes or take food. When his eyelids were raised the pupils could be seen, and he was all the time fed by artificial means.

During his sleep he has lost some weight, but he has kept throughout the external appearance of a man in normal and healthy sleep.

The playing of old jokes seems never to have an end. One night last week while a party from Antioch were camping at one of the lakes they initiated a native boy and one from the city into the mystery of "bagging snipe" with a lantern, and the joke was carried out successfully.

Rev. Stixrud will on Sept. 30, leave to attend the Rock River conference. He has been in the charge of the pastorate here for the past two years and in that time has added over eighty names to the membership of the church. His work here has been highly satisfactory and it is the sincere wish of all that he may be returned. He this year completes the necessary five years course of study required for Methodist ministers and expects to be ordained Elder on Conference Sunday Oct. 6.

Wonderful Island.
New Zealand has one of the most marvelous and phenomenal islands in the world. It is situated in the Bay of Plenty and is called White Island, and consists mainly of sulphur mixed with gypsum and a few other minerals. Over the island, which is about three miles in circumference, and rises over 800 feet above the sea, there continually floats an immense cloud of vapor, often attaining an altitude of 10,000 feet. In the center is a boiling lake of acid-charged water, covering 50 acres and surrounded with blow holes from which steam and sulphurous fumes are emitted with great force and noise. With care a boat can be navigated on the lake.

"Yes, and more than I can afford; but I'm glad you dropped in. I have just taken the agency for a subscription book entitled 'The Voters Manual.' It contains the platforms of all the existing political parties, brief biographies of all the prominent political leaders, statistics relating to the internal revenue, congressional debates on the tariff question—together with—what's your hurry?"

EFFECTS OF DRINKING TEA

Consumer of High Quality Teas Runs Least Risk of Digestive Disturbance.

The Lancet publishes a concluding article upon tea which sums up the results of an investigation into the subject under the title of "The Chemistry, Physiology and Esthetics of a Cup of Tea."

The suggestion that an infusion of good tea consists chiefly of caffeine tannate is confirmed. It is pointed out that when caffeine and tannin are in a state of combination, neither being in the free state, the harmful astringent qualities of the tannin disappear and the bitter taste of free caffeine is not perceptible.

The teas of high quality yield as a rule a simple infusion of caffeine tannate, not of caffeine or of tannin. Such teas must be regarded as the most desirable from a physiological point of view. It is interesting to find that as a rule the expert taster picks out these teas as teas of high quality.

Good teas, in short, according to this inquiry, are those which on a five minute infusion yield only caffeine in the form of caffeine tannate to the infusion and bad or indifferent teas are those which yield on infusion a tea containing, in addition to caffeine tannate, either caffeine or tannin, but especially tannin, in excess. A good tea may be made a bad tea, but a bad tea can not be made a good tea except perhaps by very skillful blending. Excessive infusion will spoil a good tea, but even a short infusion of a bad tea may be as objectionable as an excessive infusion of a good tea.

On physiological grounds, therefore, the consumer of high quality teas runs less risk of digestive disturbance provided the tea is made properly.

CERTAIN SIGNS OF POVERTY

Impressionable Child Sets Mother Right Regarding Financial Standing of Her Neighbors.

Small Sarah, observant and impressionable, ran into the house, excited and out of breath. She had been calling at a neighbor's house.

"Oh, mamma!" she exclaimed, "I thought you said the Smiths were very, very rich!"

"So I did, Susie," the mother replied. "The Smiths are understood to be worth millions."

"Mamma," said the child, "I don't believe a word of it. I think they are very poor."

"Why, Susie," remarked the astonished mother, "how did you get such an idea into your head?"

"Cause I saw two ladies playing on a piano at the same time," was Susie's response.

"That's often done," mother explained. "The ladies were playing a duet."

"But that wasn't all, mamma. Mrs. Smith's hat looks for all the world like her kitchen colander trimmed, and George Smith was wearing his father's trousers."

"Why, Susie," commented the mother, "how you talk!"

"It's true, all the same, mamma. I know they were Mr. Smith's trousers, 'cause they were so long for George that he had 'em turned up at the bottom of each leg."

Small Sarah was unfamiliar with trousers adorned with "cuffs."

All Creation.

When a woman puts powder on her face it is assumed she is endeavoring to improve her complexion and to fool the men folks in regard to it. But when she is married and her husband has to buy the powder, it is not impertinent, we think, to ask who the heck is she trying to deceive now?—Concordia Kansas.

YANKEE GIRL DOESN'T FIT

Austrian Critic Declares No Formula Can Define Young Lady From America.

Alice Schalek, Viennese traveler and writer, has provided the Vossische Zeitung of Berlin with a description of the manner wherein American women on tour differ from all others. "The fact is," she says, "you cannot class them (American women); they won't fit into any accepted formula."

"You can tell a Frenchwoman immediately, and be dead sure she's no prude, but a light-hearted flirt. If you meet an English woman you must wait to make her acquaintance until she drops her typical English reserve."

"A German woman wants to be asked about her husband and his profession, titles and their babies. An Austrian woman will be smart and a 'good fellow.' But if you meet a woman who won't fit any of these categories and doesn't correspond to any particular type, you can be dead sure she is an American."

"There is a 17-year-old whose father, mother and elder sister are along, traveling in cabins de luxe. She flirts day and night on deck, and all so naturally that she retains her social position in circumstances no other nationality could survive. 'What has it got to do with you?' she seems to ask, and there's an end of it."

"Here are some pictures from my gallery of American girls abroad, just to show their differences. A girl who petted white rats and snakes in Kyoto; a young Y. W. C. A. apostle in Corea, who was as placid as the day is long, but who flirted to her heart's content with a young English missionary; an energetic middle-aged American female, who was missionary for some obscure Parisian reincarnation of Buddha."

"There were other less pleasant pictures, but each sticks in my mind with an individuality which no European woman ever achieved. Yet perhaps there is one feature common to all these Americans—each of them cherished some eccentricity, but, whatever it was, she carried it out with unwavering determination."

"I believe we can learn much from these American women."

Food for Thought Here.

A southerner, who has his own way of stating things, inquires whether the world is fair "in dealing with God's services." "We will criticize a long sermon," he says, "a lengthy prayer, or any lengthy religious services, but sit quietly through a two-hour political speech, a funny lecture or even a monkey show."

Be Modest.
Never seem to affect the character in which you wish to shine. Modesty is the only sure bait when you angle for praise. By modesty I do not mean timidity and awkward bashfulness. On the contrary, be inwardly firm and steady, know your own value, but take care to let nobody discover that you know it. Whatever real merit you have, other people will discover and people always magnify their own discoveries, as they lessen those of others.—Lord Chesterfield.

What Sterne Said.
Sterne once said that the most accomplished way of using books is to serve them as some do lords; learn their titles and then brag of their acquaintance.

SERIAL STORY

The FLYING MERCURY

By
Eleanor M. Ingram
Author of
"The Game and the Candle"

RAY WALTERS

(Copyright, 1918, by Bobbs-Merrill Co.)

SYNOPSIS.

The story opens on Long Island, near New York city, where Miss Emily French, a relative of Ethan French, manufacturer of the celebrated "Mercury" automobile, loses her way. The car has stopped and her cousin, Dick French, is too muddled with drink to direct it right. They meet another car, which is run by a professional racer named Lestrage. The latter fixes up the French car and directs Miss French how to proceed homeward. Ethan French has disinherited his son, who is married to a girl named Emily. Emily has a good natured but irresponsible fellow, who appears that he is a partner of Ethan French wanting an expert to race with the "Mercury" at auto events, has engaged Lestrage, and at the French factory Emily encounters the young man. They refer pleasantly to their meeting when Dick comes along and recognizes the young racer. Dick likes the way Lestrage ignores their first meeting when he appeared to a disadvantage.

Rupert got up, his dark, malign little face twisted.

"If I'd broken a leg they'd have sent a cart for me," he mourned. "Now I'll have to walk, and I ain't used to it. Hard luck!"

"If you go around to the stables they will give you my pony cart," Emily offered impulsively. "You, her dimpling smile gleamed out, 'you once put a tire on for me, you know. Please let me return the service.'"

Rupert's black eyes opened, a slow grin of appreciation crinkled streaks of dust and oil as he surveyed the young girl.

"I'll put tires on every wheel you run into control, day and night shifts," he acknowledged with sweet cordiality. "But I'm no horse-chaufer, thanks; I guess I'll walk."

"He is a gentle pony," she remonstrated. "Any one can drive him."

He turned a side glance toward the motionless car.

"That's all right, but I'm used to being killed other ways. I'll be going."

"Jack Rupert, do you mean to tell me that you will race with Lestrage every season, and yet you're afraid to drive a fat cob?" cried the delighted Dick.

"I'm not telling anything. I had a chum who was pitched out by a horse he lost control of, and broke his neck. I'm taking no chances."

"How many men have you seen break their necks out of autos?"

"That's in business," pronounced Rupert succinctly. "I'm going on, Darling; it's only a two-mile run."

"Here, wait," Dick urged. "Emily, I'll stroll around to the stables with him and make one of the men drive him down. You don't mind my leaving you?"

"No," Emily answered. "I will wait for you."

She might have walked back alone, if she had chosen. But instead she sat down on a boulder near the hedge, folding her hands in her lap like a demure child. The house was so dull, so hopelessly monotonous contrasted with this fresh, wind-tossed outdoors and Lestrage in his vigor of life and glamour of ultra-modern adventure.

"You and Mr. French are very good," Lestrage said presently. "I am afraid I appreciate it more than Rupert, though."

"Is he really afraid of horses?"

"I should not wonder; I never tried him. But he is amazingly truthful."

Their eyes met across the strip of sunny road as they walked; again Emily felt the sudden confidence, the falling away of all constraint before the direct clarity of his regard.

"You won your race," she said irrelevantly. "I was glad, since you wanted it."

"Thank you," he returned with equal simplicity. "But I did not want it that way, so far as I was concerned."

"Yet, it was the next step?"

"Yes, it was the next step. I meant that one does not care to be victor because the leading cars were wrecked. There is no elation in defeating a driver who lies out on the course. But, as you say, it helped my purpose. You," he hesitated for the right phrase, "you are most kind to recall that I have a purpose."

It was the convent-bred Emily who looked back at him, earnest-eyed, exaltedly serious.

"I have thought of it often. Every one else that I know just lives the way things happen—there are only a few people who grasp things and make them happen. That is real work; so many of us are just given work we do not want—" she broke off.

"If we do not want the work, it is probably not our own," said Lestrage. "Unless we have brought it on ourselves by a fault we must undo—I need not speak of that to you. One must not make the mistake of assuming some one else's work."

He spoke gently, almost as if with a clairvoyant reading of her tendency to self-immolation.

"But may not some one else's fault be given us to undo?" she asked eagerly. "May not their work be forced on us?"

"No," he answered.

"No?" bewildered.

"I don't think so. Each one of us has enough with his own, at least so it seems to me. Most of us die before we finish it."

Emily paused, contending with the loneliness and doubts which impelled her to speech, the feminine yearning to let another decide her problems. This other's nonchalant strength of decision allured her uncertainty.

"I am discouraged," she confessed.

"And tired. I—there is no reason why I should not speak of it. You know Dick, how he can do nothing in the factory or business, or in the places where a French should stand. All this must fall into the hands of strangers, to be broken and forgotten, when my uncle dies, for lack of some one who would care. And Uncle Ethan seems severe and hard, but it grieves him all the time. His only son was not a good man; he lives abroad with his wife, who was an actress before he married her. You know that?" as he moved.

"I heard something of it in the village," Lestrage admitted gravely. "Please do not think me fond of gossip; I could not avoid it. But I should not have imagined this family likely to make low marriages."

"It never happened before. I never saw that cousin, nor did Dick; but he was always a disappointment, always. Uncle Ethan has told me. And since he failed, and Dick fails, there is only me."

"You!"

She nodded, her lip quivering.

"Only me. Not as a substitute—I am not fit for that—but to find a substitute. I have promised my uncle to marry the first one who is able to be that."

The silence was absolute. Lestrage neither moved nor spoke, gazing down at her bent head with an expression blending many shades.

"It is a duty; there is no one except me," she added. "Only sometimes"

"You will leave this in my care, who? You will not trouble about a substitute?"

"I will leave it with you. But you are forgetting your own doctrine; you are taking some one else's work to do."

"Pardon, I am merely making French do his work. I have seen a little more of him than you perhaps know; I understand what I am undertaking. Moreover, I would forget a great many doctrines to set you free."

"Free?" she echoed; she had the sensation of being suddenly confronted with an open door into the unexpected.

"Free," he quietly reassured. "Free to live your own life and draw unhampered breath, and to decide the great question when it comes, with thought only of yourself."

She drew back; a prescient dismay fell sharply across her late relief, a panic crossed with strange delight.

"He's off," called Dick, emerging from the park. "I made Anderson take him down with the limousine. At least, Rupert is driving while Anderson sits alongside and holds on; when they came to the turn in the avenue, your previous mechanic took it full speed and then apologized for going so slowly because, as he said, he was an amateur and likely to upset. Is he really a good driver, Lestrage?"

"Pretty fair," returned Lestrage serenely, from his seat on the edge of the ditched machine. "When I'm not using him, he's employed as one of the factory car testers; and when we're racing I give him the wheel if I want to fix anything. However, I'm obliged to that steering-knuckle for breaking here, instead of leaving me to a long wait in the wilds. Come down to the shop tomorrow at six, and Rupert and I will even up by taking you for a run."

"Who; me? You're asking me?"

"Why not? It's exhilarating."

Dick removed his hat and ran his fingers through his hair, gratification and alarm mingling in his expression with somewhat the effect of the small boy who is first invited into a game with his older brother's clique.

"You—er, wouldn't smash me up?" he hesitated.

"I haven't smashed up Rupert or myself, so far. If you feel timid, never mind, of course; I'll take my usual companion."

Dick flushed all over his plump face. The French blood up at last.

"I was only joking," he hastily explained. "I'll come. It's only that you're so confidently reckless sometimes. Lestrage, and— But I'll come."

Lestrage gave his fine, glinting smile as he rose to salute Emily.

"All right. If you don't get down to the factory in time, I'll call for you," he promised.

LUCINDA HAS A GRIEVANCE

Annoyed at Glare in Return for What Was Intended as a Kindly Action.

"You know how the wind blows around the Flatiron building?" said Lucinda interrogatively. "Well," she continued, "yesterday when it was so windy just as I was passing the nose of the building—you know the nose, that's the show window that projects from the building's northern point—just as I was passing the nose I felt something touch my foot, and when I looked down I saw there a man's hat."

"Now you know most girls won't pick up a man's hat. They simply let it blow past them unless it's an old man's or a cripple's for fear that the man will presume on this to add too many smiles to his thanks, but it seems to me that men are likely to be gentlemen. And anyway there was that man's hat at my foot and here was the man running after it, coming from Twenty-third street way, and I just stooped, or started to stoop, to stop it for him, but just as I did that another gust of wind struck it and away it went on around the corner down Broadway."

"All this, you understand, occupied only a brief space of time, and almost the next instant the man running for his hat came along past me, and do you know as he went by he glared at me? He fairly glared at me as if he thought I'd pushed his hat when I bent over or given it a kick, when really I had tried to stop his hat for him."

"My brother Claude tells me that we are any of us liable to be misunderstood, even when our motives are of the best, and we must not bother, and I guess that is so. But still this wasn't pleasant, and I guess I'll have to stop picking up even old men's hats and join the ranks of the girls that let men's hats roll by."—New York Sun.

Concerning Warts.

Strange beliefs relating to warts are by no means confined to the young and illiterate. They are sometimes found among persons of mature age and high intelligence.

The noted German physician, Genewein, recorded a case in which the cutting off of a single wart from the patient's hand was speedily followed by the disappearance of all the warts on his other hand. The same authority mentions another case in which the removal of a wart from a patient's hand was followed by the disappearance of one from his chin.

In a country neighborhood the boy who is without his special wart cure is an object of pity. One way to remove a wart is to rub it with a bit of stolen bacon. Another was to persuade a friend to count the warts and a third was to rub them with a cent piece and cast the coin into a pond.

INDIANS IN FLORIDA

Seminole Red Men Have Nation of Their Own.

Natives Who Refused to Go West 70 Years Ago Are Virtually Independent and Recognize No Law But Their Own.

Tampa, Fla.—Within the boundaries of the United States exists an independent nation that recognizes no department of our government and has its own rulers, laws, customs and language. The United States is as much a foreign country to it as England or France. This nation, numbering about five hundred persons, is confined to the Everglades in the most southern part of Florida. It is all that remains of the Seminole Indians, formerly one of the most powerful tribes, numerically, in North America. The nation as at present organized, is comparatively recent, but as a relic of the past, it dates back to the pre-Columbian period.

Just seventy years ago a peace agreement was declared which ended a seven years' war between the Seminoles and the United States government. The Seminole tribe was made up of two bands of Creeks who withdrew from the main body in 1760 and moved to Florida, where they were joined by remnants of tribes that had come in contact with the Spaniards. They were hostile to the white settlers, and caused the Americans a great deal of trouble during the Revolutionary war. They affiliated with the Spaniards in 1793, and again showed their enmity to the United States in the War of 1812. A few years later the Seminoles, together with a large number of runaway negroes, began making raids and massacres throughout the frontier settlements of Georgia and Alabama. In a little less than a year they were completely subdued by Gen. Andrew Jackson.

The Indians signed a treaty in 1833 in which they agreed to give up nearly all of their Florida land for a certain consideration. Some, however, objected to these conditions and were allowed to remain, with the understanding that they were to live peaceably and surrender all fugitive slaves. This was unsatisfactory to the Georgians, who demanded that the Indians be removed by force. An attempt to do this in 1835 precipitated the second Seminole war, which lasted seven years and which is said to have been the bloodiest Indian war in American history.

Under the leadership of Osceola, who combined both cunning and heroism, the Indians were remarkably successful. In one of the massacres Gen. Thomson was avenged by Osceola's own hand for having once imprisoned the chief for a day. Several treaties were no sooner made than they were violated, usually through Osceola's influence.

The war continued year after year, many troops perishing in the swamps either from poisonous insect and snake bites or from fevers. In October, 1837, Osceola, with several of his chiefs, appeared in the camp of General Jesup, who at that time was in chief command in Florida. Although the Indians carried a flag of truce Jesup ordered them seized. Osceola was sent to Charleston, where he was confined in Fort Moultrie. He died in a little more than a year. Jesup was severely criticized for violating the flag of truce, but he explained Osceola's treachery, declaring that it was the only way to end the war.

Boy Walked Off Train.

Tifton, Ga.—While asleep, Paul Inman, aged twelve, walked off a swiftly moving Atlantic coast line passenger train, near Willacooche, Ga., and did not wake up. Patrick Davis of Tity, Ga., Paul's traveling companion, missed the lad and a search resulted in finding him near Willacooche. Paul said he did not remember leaving the train but when he woke up he was lying between two trees about two miles from the railroad. He bears no bruises and is undisturbed over his experience.

THESE SIX LETTERS From New England Women

Prove that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Does Restore the Health of Ailing Women.

Boston, Mass.—"I was passing through the Change of Life and suffered from hemorrhages (sometimes lasting for weeks), and could get nothing to check them. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound (tablet form) on Tuesday, and the following Saturday morning the hemorrhages stopped. I have taken them regularly ever since and am steadily gaining."

"I certainly think that every one who is troubled as I was should give your Compound Tablets a faithful trial, and they will find relief."—Mrs. GEORGE JURY, 802 Fifth Street, South Boston, Mass.

Letter from Mrs. Julia King, Phoenix, R.I.

Phoenix, R.I.—"I worked steady in the mill from the time I was 12 years old until I had been married a year, and I think that caused my bad feelings. I had soreness in my side near my left hip that went around to my back, and sometimes I would have to lie in bed for two or three days. I was not able to do my housework."

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped me wonderfully in every way. You may use my letter for the good of others. I am only too glad to do anything within my power to recommend your medicine."—Mrs. JULIA KING, Box 282, Phoenix, R.I.

Letter from Mrs. Etta Donovan, Willimantic, Conn.

Willimantic, Conn.—"For five years I suffered untold agony from female troubles causing backache, irregularities, dizziness, and nervous prostration. It was impossible for me to walk up stairs without stopping on the way. I was all run down in every way."

"I tried three doctors and each told me something different. I received no benefit from any of them but seemed to suffer more. The last doctor said it was no use for me to take anything as nothing would restore me to health again. So I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to see what it would do, and by taking seven bottles of the Compound and other treatment you advised, I am restored to my natural health."—Mrs. ETTA DONOVAN, 793 Main Street, Willimantic, Conn.

Letter from Mrs. Winfield Dana, Augusta, Me.

Augusta, Me.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured the backache, headache, and the bad pain I had in my right side, and I am perfectly well."—Mrs. WINFIELD DANA, R.F.D. No. 2, Augusta, Me.

Letter from Mrs. J. A. Thompson, Newport, Vt.

Newport, Vt.—"I thank you for the great benefit Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me. I took eight bottles and it did wonders for me, as I was a nervous wreck when I began taking it. I shall always speak a good word for it to my friends."—Mrs. JOHN A. THOMPSON, Box 2, Newport Center, Vermont.

Letter from Miss Grace Dodds, Bethlehem, N.H.

Bethlehem, N.H.—"By working very hard, sweeping carpets, washing, ironing, lifting heavy baskets of clothes, etc., I got all run down. I was sick in bed every month."

"This last Spring my mother got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for me, and already I feel like another girl. I am regular and do not have the pains that I did, and do not have to go to bed. I will tell all my friends what the Compound is doing for me."—Miss GRACE B. DODDS, Box 133, Bethlehem, N.H.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No one sick with woman's ailments does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine, made from roots and herbs

PAVED LOTS FOR THE FEEDING OF STEERS

By W. H. SMITH,
Instructor in Animal Husbandry, University of Illinois College of Agriculture.

One of the factors usually neglected in the profits of steer feeding is the condition of the feed lot. The average lot during a great part of the feeding period is a "mud" which makes the feeding operation disagreeable to both man and beast and prevents the complete utilization of waste products by hogs.

One's attention is called to these conditions by visiting a feed lot and seeing steers covered with manure and standing in mud to their knees—refusing to wade through mud to eat, water or bed, while the hogs are diving to their ears in slush to get their share of feed.

Different ways have been tried to overcome these adverse conditions. Some keep the lot well bedded, which is very well, but the present high price of straw prevents the use of this system. Others use gravel and cinders, but this is not satisfactory unless kept well covered with bedding, sharp particles work up the cleft of the hoof and cause severe lameness which usually throws the animal off feed and causes a loss in weight. The most satisfactory and lasting way is to have the surface of the lots paved with brick or concrete.

The feed lots at the University of Illinois are paved with brick. The lots are 36 by 48 feet with a twelve foot open shed extending along the north side. This provides space for feeding twenty steers, about 100 square feet to each animal. The grade used in paving these lots was one slightly above the surrounding level and was given enough slope (6 1/4 inches from north to south and 3 1/4 inches from east to west of each lot) to allow the water to run the south-west corner of each lot. Then six inches of gravel was rolled and tamped down solid, and covered with one inch of fine sand upon which No. 1 paving brick were laid flat. The space between the brick was filled with a filler consisting of one part clean sharp sand and one part Portland cement, thoroughly mixed. Great care was taken to fill all cracks or joints between the bricks in order to prevent water from getting underneath and loosening the bricks in the pavement. Around the outside a retaining curb of 2x8 oak plank was placed to prevent breaking off the edges of the brick. Later these planks began to rot and were replaced with a six inch layer of concrete.

Some lots are paved with concrete and are satisfactory except where the surface is left so smooth that animals slip and injure themselves.

The cost of paving, which is the chief disadvantage either with brick or concrete, is from 9 to 10 cents per square foot or from $8 to $10 per steer. But when one realizes that such a lot is permanent the cost does not stand out so prominently. Steers fed on paved lots at the University of Illinois sold for 10 cents per cwt. higher than those fed in mud lots and 25.7 pounds more pork was produced per steer by hogs in the paved lots during a six month feeding period.

Figuring the gain in pork at 7 cents per pound and the extra selling price of the steers we find the paved lots practically paying for themselves in two six month feeding periods.

Furthermore, on paved lots the manure is easily handled and better saved, and the work of feeding is much more pleasant than with mud lots.

UNCLE DICK AND DAD RAISE LARGE FAMILIES

The above picture shows Uncle Dick and Dad, two capons who are taking the place of mothers to two thriving families of little chickens. Uncle Dick resides at the poultry farm of the University of Illinois, while Dad makes his home with one of the professors. They are both very large White Wyandottes and can hover with comfort a brood of over fifty chicks.

Mr. D. O. Barto, associate in poultry husbandry at the university, intends making the capons a part of his brooding system next year. At present there are over forty capons on the farm. The flesh of capons is of fine quality and brings high prices on the market. The heavier breeds of chickens are most satisfactory.

Forest and Orchard Studies.

The University of Illinois advises: "Study Agriculture in the Public Schools." It believes in scientific agriculture and believes that the young people ought to learn about it in the high schools, the rural and the grade schools. In order to help them do it, the extension department has prepared a little book to be used as a suggestive guide or text in the study of the orchard and the forest. The outline was prepared by Assistant Professor A. W. Nolan, who has had wide experience in teaching agriculture in the schools of West Virginia, Indiana and Illinois.

The subject of forestry is taken up in six parts or divisions teaching the identification of trees, how they live and grow. It tells of actual forest conditions and influences, of the farmer's woodland and its care, of the nut crop and of the use of trees in landscape gardening. Practical lessons or exercises are included with directions such as taking a census of the woodlot, planting a forest nursery, beautifying the school grounds and many others.

There are seven lessons on the orchard with the following subjects: Fruit Growing on the Farm; Selecting the Trees; Planting the Orchard; Care of Young Trees; Renovation of Old Orchards; Types of Fruit; Judging Apples; Common Orchard Pests; and Packing and Storing Fruit, also a list of reference books. These lessons, too, are accompanied by practical exercises on such subjects as pruning, spraying, grafting, judging apples, laying out orchards, etc.

Copies of "Lessons in Forest and Orchard" may be obtained free from the Agricultural Extension Department of the University of Illinois, Urbana, Ill.

PROPHECY WAS TRUE

Tragedy Rests on House Near Grave of Slain Wooser.

Curse That Rests Over Place Near St. Joseph, Mo., Had Its Inception When Two Rival Gypsies Fought Over Girl.

St. Joseph, Mo.—Built upon the unmarked grave of a murdered wooser, a little house stands upon a lonely knoll near Saxton station, seven miles east of St. Joe, Mo., a thing accursed and shunned by those who know its history. They fear the baleful influences which are said to surround it.

During the 12 years it has been standing eight lives have been blotted out by violent means, illness and ill fortune have followed the advent of new tenants, the crops have failed, while those on neighboring farms prospered and a sequence of misfortunes has dogged the footsteps of those who have braved the place and its curse.

The curse that hangs over the place began before the house was built. It had its inception when two young gypsies, rivals for the hand of a daughter of the tribe, fell out over their love affairs and fought. The vanquished one stole up behind his sleeping rival that night and plunged a knife into his back. Then he went to the king of the band and confessed what he had done.

Whatever the motive which inspired the king—whether his heart was with the murderer or whether he did not want an investigation by the authorities—he ordered that the body of the slain man be taken to the knoll near by and buried.

It was years later that Christopher Schroers, a young farmer, building the house to shelter the wife whom he soon proposed to take, looked down from the roof he was shingling to see standing at the foot of his ladder an aged gypsy crone. She expressed a desire to tell his fortune.

"The fates are unkind," said the gypsy dolefully, shaking her head. "You are soon to be married. You dream of a long life ahead. You think to gather with your children and grandchildren about this place. But in your hand I see naught but trouble. Your dreams will not come true. You will meet a death of violence, and your widow will be left to mourn alone."

"Get out with your bad-luck tales," said Schroers and laughed again.

"I read a-true," said the gypsy. "The house that you build shall be a house of ill luck. Beneath one of the trees that shades it there lies a body—one of my own tribe who was buried there by the hands of his friends. His spirit cries out for vengeance and a peaceful, hallowed grave. Until this is accomplished there shall be no rest for those who live here."

Schroers returned to his work whistling. If he ever thought of the gypsy woman's prophecy he did not mention it to the girl he soon married and took to live in the new house. A few months later, returning from St. Joseph one night, Schroers allowed his wagon to tarry a moment too long on the railway crossing almost in front of his own gate. They picked up his mangled body a hundred feet away, and the wreck of his wagon was scattered along the right of way. Tragedy had marked the place ever since.

BAD ROADS COST MILLIONS

Farmers Lose That Amount Yearly, Says A. C. Trumbo of Muskogee, Okla.

Denver, Col.—A. C. Trumbo of Muskogee, Okla., president of the trans-Mississippi congress, which met in Salt Lake City, declared that the producers of agricultural products in America lose annually $250,000,000 over their European neighbors through cost of transportation.

The solution of the problem, said Mr. Trumbo, is in good roads, a question which he says the forthcoming congress is going to make paramount

ELECTRIC LIGHT IN DENMARK

Every Town in That Country of Over 5,000 Population Has Public Service.

According to recent information about the progress of electric light and power industries in Denmark, it appears that all the towns of 5,000 inhabitants and over are now provided with public electric service, says the Scientific American. As to towns having between 5,000 and 3,000 inhabitants, there are only three in which electric mains are not installed, so that it will be seen that Denmark is one of the most progressive countries in this respect. The largest sized electric stations are to be found at Copenhagen and at present there are three large plants in operation giving a total of 27,000 horse power. Current is supplied for the city mains, as well as for the tramway lines. As regards the Danish stations in small towns, in general each town has its own plant, and there is but one example of an intercommunal system. This is at Skovshoved, near Copenhagen, and the central station extends its power lines over all the suburban regions, also supplying the tramways of Hellerup and Klampenborg. In most of the town electric stations the Diesel heavy oil engine is used.

ERUPTION LIKE PIMPLES

Wathena, Kan.—"My child's scalp trouble became so bad that I was ashamed to have anyone see him. His head had a solid scab on it. He also had a terrible breaking out on his face which was gradually growing worse. The eruption was like pimples which developed into sores when he scratched, which he did almost constantly. Baby would almost scratch himself raw."

"I had used several different kinds of salve, none of them helping in the least bit, when I saw the Cuticura advertisement in the paper and it made me think of the good results my sister had when she used it for her children. I had only used Cuticura Soap and Ointment about two weeks before I noticed that the sores were almost entirely gone, and it must have been a month or six weeks he was troubled before I began the treatment. He would get angry when I would put the Cuticura Ointment on him. Cuticura Soap and Ointment completely cured him and he has a clear complexion now." (Signed) Mrs. W. H. Hughes, Dec. 31, 1911.

Adulation Pleased Rousseau.

Rousseau, whose bicentenary celebration occasioned a riot in Paris the other day, created a sensation when he visited England in 1766, "Rousseau and his Armenian dress," wrote Lord Charlemont, "were followed by crowds when he first arrived in London, and as long as this species of admiration lasted he was contented and happy. Garrick not only gave a supper in his honor, but played two characters specially to please him. Rousseau was highly gratified, but Mrs. Garrick declared that she had never spent a more unpleasant evening in her life, the philosopher being so anxious to display himself, and hanging over the front of the box so much, that she was obliged to hold him by the skirts of his coat to prevent him from falling over into the pit."

WHAT WILL CURE MY BACK?

Common sense will do more to cure backache than anything else. "I will tell you whether the kidneys are sore, swollen and aching. Then common sense will tell you to use Doan's Kidney Pills, the best recommended special kidney remedy.

Don't Poison Baby.

FORTY YEARS AGO almost every mother thought her child must have PAREGORIC or laudanum to make it sleep. These drugs will produce sleep, and A FEW DROPS TOO MANY will produce the SLEEP FROM WHICH THERE IS NO WAKING. Many are the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined for life by paregoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a narcotic product of opium. Druggists are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics named to children at all, or to anybody without labelling them "poison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain and produces sleep, but which in poisonous doses produces stupor, coma, convulsions and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium are disguised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrups," etc. You should not permit any medicine to be given to your children without you or your physician know of what it is composed. CASTORIA DOES NOT CONTAIN NARCOTICS, if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

AMIALE STUPIDITY IN WIFE

Once Clever Woman Was Doomed to Celibacy Unless Clever Enough to Act the Part of Fool.

Some years ago a smart London magazine invited 50 prominent men of the day to declare their taste in women and particularly whether they preferred clever or stupid wives.

And the 50 masculine nabobs, literary, artistic, legal, commercial, rushed eagerly into print on this most delicate subject.

Forty-two of them, comments a Los Angeles newspaper woman, pronounced in favor of amiable stupidity, especially in wives. Seven of them—one was Max O'Rell—balked the question and found charms on both sides. And only one declared that he honestly preferred a clever woman, provided she did not think she was cleverer than he was.

And what happened? It just shows the cussedness of the sex. Instead of promptly cultivating amiable imbecility and thus making the supply equal to the demand every last female among them decided that she would be clever from henceforward. No commercial instinct, you see!

And for a year or two things came to such a pass that a clever woman was foredoomed to celibacy from the outset unless she was clever enough to act the fool. From the marriage records one reasonably concludes that a good many of them acted the fool.

But now? Why there never was such a demand for clever women. Not only are they considered absolutely necessary in the various professions in which intelligence is at a high premium, but men even want to marry them!

The Universe an Accident. The universe, together with its parts, is nothing but a number of accidents, ever changing and being renewed at every breath and linked together in a single substance and at each instant disappearing and being replaced by a similar set. In consequence of this rapid succession, the spectator is deceived into the belief that the universe is a permanent existence.—By Nur-Addin 'Abd-Alrahman Jami.

SQUIRREL SHOWS DEEP GRIEF

Mourns Over Severed Head of Mate With Intensity That Seems Almost Human.

Almost every public park in the United States has its lively and half-domesticated colony of squirrels, and there is no other creature of the woods and fields with which city children may—and do—become so familiar. An interesting story which shows the depth of feeling which these little animals are capable, comes to the Companion from Waterloo, Ia.:

A physician who lives near one of the parks in that city had long had an especial interest in a pair of squirrels which made their home in a tree within sight of his house. One day he noticed that one of this pair was running up and down a certain tree in the park, meanwhile chattering in the greatest excitement. Finally the little fellow appeared on a branch, holding between his paws the severed head of his mate, over which he was moaning and whining pitifully. On investigation, it appeared that the dead squirrel had been caught and actually decapitated by a limb split off from the tree by a storm of the night before.

The grief-stricken mate would not abandon the body all that day, and mourned over the severed head with an intensity and absorption which seemed almost human, with a depth of emotion indeed, of which some human beings are hardly capable.—Youth's Companion.

Some Proof.

"So he took you out auto riding the other evening?" "Yes, what of it?" "Do you think he is in love with you?" "I think so. I know that every time I spoke to him the auto tried to climb a tree or jump a fence."—Houston Post.

The Lovable Girl.

She manages to avoid all ill-natured gossip without appearing to reprove the gossipers or being in the least degree priggish herself. She has a positive genius for discovering agreeable traits in the most unlikely people. Tell her that a certain young man is lazy, and she will never amount to much in this world, and she will almost surely tell you that this same man is an invalid.

All her young friends may laugh and ridicule the manner in which Miss Fleming (who has more years than charms to her credit) dresses her hair, striving to look young again, and this girl whom everyone likes will smile and ask her chattering companions if they remember that it was Miss Fleming who organized their own beloved "book club," loaning them her rare volumes and helping with her kindly efforts to make the club a real success.

She is frank in her likes, this girl, but cautious in expressing dislikes of other people or things. Her friendship gives more than it expects, and her love will be pure and true. Happy by nature, she sends into the lives of her companions a good cheer, and fortunate indeed is the young man who wins for himself her love.—Exchange.

Ship Barnacles.

One of the worst nuisances that sailors have to put up with is barnacles. Barnacles abound in almost all seas, attaching themselves in great numbers to logs of wood, the bottoms of ships and other floating materials.

The common or ship barnacle is a species of shellfish. It is distinguished by a long, flexible stalk that is provided with muscles by means of which the creature can elongate or contract itself at will. Upon the end of the stalk there are five shelly valves, the principal organs of the animal being closed within. These valves open and close to admit of the barnacle spreading out and drawing back its net, an apparatus by which it obtains food.

Ship barnacles congregate in such numbers on ships that the latter's sailing powers are seriously impaired. The creatures grow rapidly, at the same time undergoing such wonderful transformation that they are objects of interesting study.

Bacon Sandwiches.

Wispis of breakfast bacon, delicately broiled, make the most appetizing of sandwiches, especially if put between toasted slippers of graham bread. The small shreds of bacon must lie on lettuce and be seasoned with paprika or red pepper. These are as appetizing cold as hot.

Ventilation Test.

A single way to tell whether your room is properly ventilated is to place a wide-necked bottle of water into which you have put half an ounce of lime water, in the room, letting it remain uncovered over night. If in the morning the lime water is milk the ventilation is bad. If the lime water becomes milk on your covering the bottle mouth with your hand and shaking the vessel, the ventilation is not sufficiently good. If the lime water remains clear, the air of that room is pure.

Money in Beaver Pelts.

According to the Ottawa Citizen, the recent sale of furs at the Parliament building realized $5,354.05 for the province. The pelts were taken from animals trapped in Algonquin park, under the direction of the minister of lands, forests and mines.

There were 480 beaver skins, which were caught under special order, and realized $4,090.50; 89 mink, 5 fisher, 11 marten, 71 muskrat, 12 otter and 8 ermine. In addition, 23 pounds of castoreum were sold. This is a secretion found in the beaver and is used in making perfumes and for medicinal purposes.

The revenues of Algonquin park have also been augmented during the past year by the sale of live beavers to several zoological societies. Animals have been shipped to New York, Philadelphia and London, England.

He Chose the Flat.

"You are charged with desertion," said the judge sternly.

"Judge," answered the prisoner at the bar, "I will explain. Our flat is so small that my wife and I can't live in it comfortably at the same time. Being naturally tender hearted and considerate of her welfare, I stay on the outside and let her stay on the inside."

The judge ruminated. "Ingenious but not convincing. Take your choice between going back to live with your wife in the narrow confines of your flat and spending six months in our workhouse, where there is plenty of room."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Awful Fix.

"Peggy's in a terrible fix." "What's the trouble?" "She's just counted up and found she's refused a dozen offers of marriage, and now though she's crazy to marry Dick she's afraid to accept him because he's the thirteenth."

A New York woman sent her congratulations to her divorced husband when he married again. She should have sent her regrets to the new wife.

Our damsels wear rings on their fingers and feathers on their shoes, but there is no danger that they will wear bells on their toes—not in this climate.

A Chicago man is being tried for having married seven women, but there are those who believe that he should be examined by a flock of allentists.

A Maryland citizen committed suicide rather than submit to an operation for appendicitis. Evidently he preferred an undertaker's bill to a doctor's bill.

Titanic as a Synonym for Large.

Marion made it a practice to use all the new words she heard of in sentences. The other night she was listening while her mother read of the disaster of the Titanic.

"Mother," she said, "what does Titanic mean?"

"Titanic," her mother replied, "means very large, or big."

Marion was thoughtful for a minute. Then turning to her mother she said:

"I can use it in a sentence."

"How?" asked her mother.

"The Titanic ship hit an iceberg Titanic than itself," said Marion.

What Constitutes Man.

It seems to me that the wit of man, strength, his grace, his tendency, his art, is the grace and presence of God.—Emerson.

What Could He Mean?

A young woman went to a grocery store and asked the polite clerk if he had some good cheese. "Yes, indeed," he replied, "I have some lovely cheese." "It is not correct to call cheese 'lovely,'" she said. "How is that?" he inquired. "Because 'lovely' should be used to qualify only something that is alive." "Well," retorted the clerk, "I'll stick to 'lovely.'"
